DR. BOHANNON SPEAKS AT METHODIST CHURCH

Spanish Instructor States Needs of Mexico in Address Sunday Night.

"Mexico needs religion, education and to have the land turned back to the people," said Dr. Ida Bohannon, a returned missionary and instructor in Spanish in the University. She spoke at the Broadway Methodist Church, at a service conducted by the Women's Missionary Society.

"Everything in Mexico worth anything is owned by 7,000 persons. There are 15,000,000 people in Mexico and 12,000,000 of them own absolutely nothing, not even their homes," she said. "The land belonged to them until the coming of the Diaz regime, thirty years ago. This is the reason for the conflict in Mexico."

"After having 100 Mexicans in his plant in Detroit as an experiment, Henry Ford says, 'The Mexican young men are as bright and as reliable as the American young men.' The middle class of people with a little education and ambition will be a very worth-while people."

Mrs. F. C. Moore, president of the Missionary Society, presided. "Columbia has sent a number of missionaries, among them Miss Mary Seacy, Japan; Miss Dora Ingram, Mexico; Miss Mattie Cunningham, now in Oklahoma; and two, Miss Susan Brown and Miss Marian Daniels, are in New York training for medical missionaries. We have a number of student volunteers."

Mrs. J. A. Stewart read a review of a portion of "Marks of a World Christian," by Fleming. Mrs. H. H. Loudonback sang a solo. The choir sang an anthem with Miss Louise Wylie and J. H. Aydelotte as soloists. Mrs. Eva Phillips gave two readings. Bruce H. Todd sang a tenor solo. "The King of Love" was rendered by a chorus consisting of Bruce H. Todd, J. H. Aydelotte, A. D. THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY IS WIRELESS OPERATOR

Frederick Olmsted Has Apparatus Constructed by Himself in His Room.

Frederick Olmsted.

On the highest floor of Pemberton Hall, in a room which is his very own, 13-year-old Frederick Olmsted, probably the youngest wireless operator in Columbia, has a receiving and sending apparatus, which he constructed practically by himself. Each night from 8 until 9:30 o'clock Frederick, or "Heinie" as he is familiarly called by friends, sends and receives wireless messages and listens to music at Slater, Mo., Omaha, Neb., or Cleveland, Ohio.

"I got my first wireless four years ago when I was only 9 years old," said Heinie. "It was only a toy one, but I experimented with it and kept buying parts and building it up, until I have a pretty fair outfit now. I can send messages anywhere within a radius of twenty-five miles, and receive them from all parts of the United States."

Frederick was living at Carthage, Mo., when he received the toy wireless for Christmas, and he went to the Carthage library for books on the subject. From these books, and by means of experimenting, he managed to construct his present outfit. He is now 13 years old, and a freshman in the University High School, where he sometimes takes his wireless for demonstrations.

"What am I going to do when I grow up? Well, that's pretty far off yet," said Heinie, "but I expect to be a radio worker either on land or sea." And he adjusted the receivers over his ears and listened attentively to a message from a station some thousand miles away. He couldn't be bothered with a message, but "when messages" were coming in.

COLUMBIA GOES OVER QUOTA

Two Hundred Additional Signers for Referendum Petition.

About 200 additional signers were obtained Saturday by local Democratic forces to the petitions for a referendum on the Redistricting Bill, according to a report given by G. B. Sapp, chairman of the county committee. The original campaign for getting the petitions signed was closed last Friday but the stronger democratic counties throughout the state were asked to make the additional drive in order to make up for other counties which did not get their allotted quota.

Boone County was allotted 1,000 signatures for this petition but went over that number by 250 names. The drive of Saturday made the total number sent in from this county about 1,250.

PROTECTION OF FORESTS IN SOUTH IS DISCUSSED

Twelve Delegates From Missouri Attend Fourth Southern Forestry Congress.

Fire protection and the care necessary for southern woodlands, in order to insure second crops of timber, were the main topics of discussion at the fourth annual meeting of the Southern Forestry Congress held at Jackson, Miss., February 6, 7 and 8, according to Frederick Dunlap of this city, who has just returned from the meet, where he was one of the twelve delegates from Missouri.

The area from which there were delegates included the states from Virginia southward and as far west as Texas. There were also about forty representatives of operating lumber companies in attendance, said Mr. Dunlap.

Hardier forests were discussed by the members of the Forestry Experiment Station at Asheville, N. C. Damage done by browsing in these woodlands is great, as the cattle and sheep browse most heavily on the more valuable species, while the opposite is true of pine forests, because browsing keeps out the scrub oaks, Mr. Dunlap said.

Reports from the various states on their progress during the past year were read on the first morning of the meeting. Mr. Dunlap read the plan under which the Missouri Forestry Association has recently been organized which created a great deal of interest, especially among the Georgia delegates. The Severance Tax Bill which was before the state legislature of Mississippi was discussed but was not endorsed by the Congress.

W. D. Tyler of the Clinchfield Coal Corporation of Dante, Va., was elected president and R. D. Forbes of New Orleans was re-elected secretary of the fifth congress, which will be held in 1923 at Montgomery, Ala.

CHORUS HAS SIXTY VOICES

"Nautical Knot" Has Cast From Town and Schools.

The chorus for the "Nautical Knot," to be produced tomorrow night, will contain sixty voices, made up of the combined talent of the University, Stephens and Christian colleges, and the town.

The production has been characterized as one of the most popular operettas ever written and has been staged more times than any other operetta on record, according to F. H. Talbot, who is directing it.

"Aside from the purpose of providing a good musical entertainment, the production has as an added aim the selling of the University, colleges and town into closer harmony," said Mr. Talbot. Reservations for the performance may be made at the Hall Theater today and tomorrow.

Are You Helping to Make Columbia a Healthier Place in Which to Live

The total of 125,000 of America's young men were killed in the World War. A terrible toll for a great cause. Yet over 500,000 were annihilated by the influenza pestilence in the United States. A terrible toll for a needless cause.

Think of this, every new heating plant or plumbing installation made in Columbia means not only health insurance to that family but health insurance to their fellow citizens with whom they are constantly mingling. Is your home provided with sanitary health insurance? If not, why not start at once to do your share to make conditions more sanitary.

We will be glad to call and advise with you as to your actual needs in both plumbing and heating. We make no charge for this kind of inspection.

Diversified Diplomatic Career Sends Columbian to Portugal

Fred Morris Dearing, who has been appointed United States minister to Portugal, is a native of Columbia. He was born here on November 19, 1879, and was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1901 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and in 1904 took the degree of Master of Diplomacy at Columbia University, New York.

In 1901 Mr. Dearing began his services for the government as translator in the federal Postoffice Department. In 1902 he was translator and statistician in the Division of Foreign Markets and the department of agriculture.

He began his diplomatic career in 1904 as private secretary to the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Cuba, and thereafter held the following positions in the diplomatic service: Second secretary of the legation at Havana, 1906; second secretary of the legation at Pekin, 1907; secretary for the legation at Havana, 1909, 1910; second secretary of the embassy at London, 1910; secretary of the embassy at Mexico City, 1910; assistant chief of the Division of Latin Affairs, and chief of Mexican affairs at Washington, 1911; secretary of the legation at Brussels, 1913.

In 1913 he traveled extensively through the Mediterranean region and North Africa. He always made a point of traveling through any country in which he was stationed, and thus he obtained knowledge that was invaluable to a diplomat.

Mr. Dearing's name was presented to President Wilson by the State Department in 1917 for an appointment as minister, but was rejected.

In April, 1917, he joined the forces of the American International Corporation and was put in charge of diplomatic questions arising in connection with the corporation's activities, especially those in the Far East.

He thus takes with him to his new post four years of business experience as well as four years of renewed touch with America—its life and its ideals.

QUEENS' PICTURES TAKEN

Orville Hixon of Hixon Studio, Kansas City Does Photographing.

Orville Hixon of Kansas City arrived in Columbia Saturday to photograph the 1922 Savitar queens.

About twenty women's organizations in the University have placed entries in the Savitar queen race. Their photographs, made by Hixon, will be sent to Charles Dana Gibson, art editor of Life, who will select six queens from the pictures sent him. Hixon, who brought special equipment with him from Kansas City, will make the pictures in Room 304 of the Daniel Boone Tavern.

The women's organizations will not be limited in the number of entries they place in the contest, the only requirement being that they pay the expense of having their extra entries photographed. In case any of the late entries are chosen as queens, this expense will be refunded by the Savitar.
